4. The raising of a new corps will not, as a rule, be allowed if the number of persons willing to be enrolled is less than thirty-five. Applications for raising new corps. Proposals for the raising of a new corps, or for the reorganization of existing corps must be submitted for the sanction of the G. of I. through the chief civil officer of the locality and the local Government and must contain full information on the following points :—the designation of the corps, the name of the commandant, the number of persons willing to be enrolled, the units composing the corps, the uniform of the corps ; whether an armoury and magazine will be provided ; whether the use of a range or a convenient site for one, can be obtained ; whether suitable quarters can be provided for the U. I. instructor near the armoury and magazine. No designation or uniform will be adopted except under the authority of the Governor-General in Council. Proposals for the abolition of existing corps must also be submitted for the sanction of the Government of India, through the same channel. The addition of units of a similar kind, or of reserve units to an existing active corps, will be sanctioned by the local Government after due consideration of the requirements referred to above ; except in the case of the addition of active units to Artillery, Engineer and Port Defence Volunteers, when the sanction of the G. of I. must be applied for, with full information regarding such requirements.

Enrolment.

5. Members of a corps may be enrolled or honorary.

(1) Persons of every rank whose names are entered for service in the roll of a corps are enrolled members. They must be Europeans, or of European descent, or naturalized British subjects. The following officers and soldiers of the regular forces on full pay are alone eligible for enrolment in the volunteer force, but they must, except in the case Who may be enrolled in the volunteer force.

of clerks, produce certificates from the persons under whom they are employed that their becoming volunteers will not interfere with their duties:—officers of the Indian Army, I. M. S., and A. V. D., in civil employ; departmental officers with honorary rank, and soldiers (U. L.) except those employed on veterinary duties or in military prisons and detention barracks; assistant-surgeons; army schoolmasters; bandsmen (U. L.); soldiers employed in the Lawrence Asylums. No U. L. ranks, except departmental officers with honorary rank, are, however, eligible for appointment as commissioned officers. Army pensioners, apprentices (with the consent of their masters), and members of the police force are eligible for enrolment, but the latter cannot hold any rank but that of private without the sanction of the local Government. A removed or dismissed volunteer will not be re-enrolled without the sanction of the local Government. Persons who have served in the Royal Navy or R. A. or who have for five years been efficient members of an active volunteer artillery corps may be enrolled as artillery reservists; otherwise only those persons who show good reason for not being able to belong to active corps should be enrolled as reservists, and the O. C. a reserve corps or regimental reserve shall not, without the consent of the O. C. the active corps in which the persons served, enrol as such any person who as a non-efficient and under 35 years of age (47 years in the case of a railway employé) resigned an active corps with a view to enrolment in the reserve. Youths who are physically fit to bear arms may be enrolled as cadets. No member of a corps shall be enrolled in another corps until he has legally ceased to be a member of the former corps. Employés of railway companies who are volunteers should, if possible, be enrolled in the corps connected with the railway concerned. The enrolment of members rests with the O. C. the corps.

Honorary members.

(2) Honorary members are (a) honorary colonels (see paragraph 11), (b) those who contribute to the funds of the corps, (c) those who have served as enrolled members and whose names, in consideration of past services, are retained on the rolls. They are neither enrolled, nor subject to military discipline, nor liable to be called out for actual military service. They may not interfere in the duties of the corps. They are permitted to wear the uniform of the corps with the addition of the letter H on the shoulder straps, see paragraph 169. There is no limit to the number of honorary members.

Enrolment.

6. Every person offering himself for enrolment will be required to sign a declaration (see Appendix II). He will, if accepted by the O. C., be given a certificate of enrolment (see Appendix III), bearing the date on which he signed the declaration.

Number to appear on corps roll.

7. A number will be assigned to a volunteer on enrolment and entered against his name in the roll of the corps. A number which becomes vacant will not be filled up. When a corps is incorporated with another corps the members will receive fresh numbers, the old numbers and corps being shewn against their names in the corps roll. When the numbers in a corps reach 9,999 a new series will be commenced. A statement of the service (see Appendix X) of each enrolled member will be kept up.

Establishments.

8. The establishments of enrolled members of volunteer units are laid down in Appx. XIV.

Appointments, promotion, transfer, resignation.

Commissioned officers.

9. No officer of the regular forces on full pay, except an officer of the Ordnance, Clothing and Military Accounts Departments, an officer in civil employ who is not serving in the police force, and a departmental officer with honorary rank (U. L.), may hold a commission in the Volunteer Force. The grant of a commission to an unemployed military officer requires the sanction of the G. of I. A naturalized British subject is eligible for a commission. The commissions of officers of active corps are signed by the Viceroy and Governor General, and those of officers of reserve corps and regimental reserves by the head of the local Government concerned. Commissions are exempt from stamp duty.

Explanation of supersession

(b) Except in very special circumstances, first appointments to corps will be in the rank of 2nd Lieutenant.

Appointment of adjutant.

15. An officer of the regular forces will not, unless special circumstances exist, be appointed adjutant of a volunteer corps or group of corps when the total number of enrolled members, exclusive of supernumeraries, at the time of his appointment, is less than 240. The grouping of corps for the services of an adjutant must be sanctioned by the local Government. Two adjutants are allowed for the East Indian and Madras railway volunteers. An officer of the regular forces or volunteers may be appointed to officiate as adjutant in a temporary vacancy. Whilst adjutant an officer cannot hold any other appointment nor will he, unless substantial reasons are shown, be permitted to resign the adjutancy. Applications for the appointment will be submitted on I. A. F. Y.-1928.

Vacation by paymaster.

When the Lde. Comdr. considers it necessary he may detail an officer of the local Indian Submarine Mining company to perform the duties of Assistant Adjutant with the local company of electrical engineer volunteers. No extra allowances will be given for this duty.

Position on transfer.

16. The appointment of paymaster, if held by an officer with substantive rank, must be vacated on promotion to the rank of major.

17. An officer on transfer is ordinarily placed in his new corps at the bottom of the list of his rank, but without prejudice to his rank in the volunteer force. In cases where the transfer has been caused owing to the exigencies of an officer's employment, in his civil or official capacity, and not for the convenience of the individual, an officer may be placed in any position on the list of his rank in his new corps, on the recommendation of the G. O. C. division, and with the sanction of the local Government concerned.

No transfer to reserve or vice versa.

18. An officer cannot be transferred from an active corps to a reserve corps or regimental reserve. He must, before joining the reserve, resign the commission held by him in the active corps. The converse also holds good.

Resignation.
Supernumerary list.

19. If circumstances prevent an honorary officer from taking an active interest in the concerns of the corps he should be required to resign his commission. If any other volunteer officer is unavoidably prevented from taking an active part in the duties of the corps he may be borne as a supernumerary on the establishment of his rank for two years and, at the termination of this period, as a supernumerary on the establishment of his corps for a further period of three years, on the conclusion of which his name will be struck off the roll of the corps and he must resign his commission. An officer must on finally leaving India resign his commission. An officer of cadets who belongs to an institution from which the latter are drawn, shall, on severing his connection with the institution, be placed on the supernumerary list.

Resignations, transfers and acting appointments.

19-A. Any volunteer officer who is over 55 years of age, or who is inefficient, may, with the approval of the C-in-C., be called upon to resign his commission; and if he fails to do so, he will be removed from his corps under the provisions of Section 7 of the Indian Volunteers' Act, 1869.

Appointments,
promotion, etc.,
how notified.

20. Application from officers to resign, or for transfer to other corps, or to be placed on the supernumerary list, will be submitted to the local Government for approval. All acting appointments must be sanctioned by the same authority.

21. The appointment, promotion, and resignation of officers of active corps who hold substantive rank will be published in the Gazette of India (draft of orders and when necessary, commissions being sent to the G. of I., A. D., by the local Government in cases in which the latter is the sanctioning authority), of all other officers of active corps and of officers of the reserve in the local Government gazette. Transfers and acting appointments will in all cases be notified in the local Government gazette.

Appointment of instructors.

22. Colour sergeant, squadron or company sergeant major instructors, are non-departmental soldiers on the U. L. and belong to the permanent staff of volunteer corps. They are referred to hereafter in this volume as "U. L. instructors".

Their appointments are made in accordance with the instructions on I. A. F. U-1740. They may not hold any other appointment.

Drill instructors are N. C. Os. of British corps below the rank of sergeant who are, under the orders of the Bde. Comdr., temporarily detached during the drill season and for a period not exceeding six months in the year, for duty with volunteer corps which are located at stations where there are British troops. They will always reside in barracks. An U. L. instructor is ordinarily allowed to each corps consisting of not less than a division, troop, or company, and each company of electrical engineer volunteers, and a drill instructor for every two additional divisions, troops, or companies, but, under sanction of the G. of I., this scale may be increased when necessary. An additional drill-instructor is allowed in the case of the Agra, Allahabad, Baluchistan, Bangalore, Nagpore, and 2nd Bn., G. I. P. Railway volunteers, for instruction in gunnery.

23. An acting sergeant-major is allowed to a corps having, at the time of his appointment, not less than 240 efficient members including reservists (two in the case of the East Indian and Madras Railway Rifle Volunteers). Their appointments are made by the following authorities, from seniority lists of U. L. instructors recommended for promotion which are maintained by them:—

Acting sergeant-major and instructors.

Railway Corps—Northern Army.—By the G. O. C. 8th (Lucknow) division.

Railway Corps—Southern Army.—By the G. O. C. 9th (Secunderabad) division.

Non-railway Corps—Northern Army.—By the G. O. C. 4th (Lucknow) division.

Non-railway Corps—Southern Army.—1st, 5th and 6th divisions.
—By the G. O. C. 6th (Poona) division.

Non-railway Corps—Southern Army.—9th division.—By the G. O. C. 9th (Secunderabad) division.

Non-railway Corps—Southern Army.—Burma division By the G. O. C. Burma division.

U. L. instructors of railway corps are not eligible for the appointment of acting sergeant-major in non-railway corps, or vice versa.

24. The N.-C. Os. of a corps are appointed and promoted by the O. C. from among the enrolled members. Transfers of N.-C. Os. and men from one corps to another will be arranged between the O. C. concerned.

Appointment of volunteer N.-C. Os.

25. When a volunteer gives the notice required by law of his intention to quit his corps, he must deliver up all government property in his possession (see section 15 of Act XX of 1869, Appx. I) before he can be discharged.

Resignation of corps.

26. A discharge certificate (Appx. IV) will be given to every volunteer on his name being struck off the roll of the corps, and, if desired, a member who voluntarily quits a corps after eight years' service as an efficient may, on being duly discharged, receive a certificate of good service (I. A. F. Y-19:0).

Discharge certificate.

27. 28. Volunteer officers will exercise command over volunteers and, in the case of officers of the reserve, over reservists. Volunteers will be led by their own officers, but when acting with the regular forces, are under the command of the O. C. the troops of which they form part. Honorary rank does not confer any higher command than that to which the holder may be entitled by virtue of his substantive rank.

Absence of commandant.

29. Where a 2nd-in-command is not appointed, the next senior officer on the active establishment will command an active corps in the absence of the commandant.

Rank of volunteer officer.

30. The rank of officers of the volunteer force will only be officially recognised when they are on duty as such or attending a state ceremony. They will, even though they hold army rank, be addressed by their volunteer rank in all matters connected with the volunteer service. These rules do not apply to an officer of the regular forces serving as adjutant of a volunteer corps.

Precedence.

31. Officers of the volunteer force rank with officers of the regular forces as juniors of the rank in question. The precedence of an officer in the volunteer force is determined by his rank, by seniority of rank where the latter is the same, and by seniority of the next lower rank where the rank held and the dates of appointment thereto are the same; that of officers of the same corps is determined by the order of their names in the Indian Army List. An honorary chaplain will rank as a volunteer captain. An officer of the regular forces serving as adjutant has precedence according to his army rank. U. L. Instructors and drill-instructors rank on parade as senior to all volunteer N. C. Os.

Ranks of medical officers.

32. Medical officers of volunteer corps (except officers of the I. M. S. who will retain their army rank) will be granted the following substantive ranks :—

veterinary-lieutenant	... on first appointment.
veterinary-captain	... after fifteen years' service as a veterinary officer, if recommended by the O. C.

A quartermaster, and a paymaster not holding substantive rank as an officer, will, on appointment, be granted the honorary rank of lieutenant and captain, respectively.

Honorary rank for long and useful service.

35. Volunteer officers are eligible for the grant of a step of honorary rank under the conditions noted below, provided their service in the volunteers has been consistently efficient. Each case will be considered on its merits.

No.	Condition.	Rank.	Honorary rank.	When granted.
1	5 years as commandant, or after 25 years commissioned service, 5 years of which must be in the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, when specially recommended.	Lieut.-Colonel.	A step of rank.	While serving or on resignation.

A second step of honorary rank will in no circumstances be given upon the same substantive rank. One-half of any full pay service in the ranks in the regular forces, and one-fifth of any full pay service in the ranks in the auxiliary forces, will reckon as commissioned service. An application for honorary rank will be accompanied by a detailed statement of the applicant's service, the correctness of which will be certified by the O. C.

Training and Education.

Training.

60. The general principles which govern the training of volunteers General principles.
are given in the Indian Supplement to the Training and Manœuvre Regulations, section 2.

The following paragraphs contain details as to training, examinations, efficiency qualifications, and inspections.

The duty of the permanent staff with regard to training.

Adjutant.

U. L. instructors.

Periodical training of U. L. instructors.

U. L. instructors trained at arsenals.

Training of officers.

Training of N. C. O.'s and volunteers.

Naval and Artillery volunteers.

Electrical Engineers.

61. It is the duty of an adjutant of volunteers to act as the staff officer of the commanding officer. He will encourage officers to train their own sub-units and will in every way in his power assist them in acquiring military knowledge. In this he can be of great assistance by directing their attention to the portions of the Field Service Regulations and Training Manuals which are especially important to them—vide para. 79. The efficiency of the adjutant can be tested by the measure of self-reliance of the officers of the corps. The adjutant will exercise a general supervision over the musketry training of the corps, and the training of recruits.

U. L. instructors will assist the non-commissioned officers. They will avoid usurping the functions of non-commissioned officers who must be entirely responsible for the training and efficiency of their own commands. U. L. instructors, under the orders of the commanding officer, will instruct recruits in the rudiments of drill and rifle exercises. This instruction should be curtailed as far as possible. They will assist in supervising musketry training.

62. Every U. L. instructor of volunteers will be attached to a British corps for one month every three years for drill and instruction in matters connected with his appointment. During his absence no acting appointment will be made in his place in the corps.

63. An U. L. instructor who has not been previously trained, should be sent at the earliest opportunity to an arsenal for instruction in the execution of minor repairs of fire-arms. Applications will be submitted on I. A. F. X.-1835.

64. The first essential for efficiency is a well trained corps of officers. General officers commanding divisions are responsible for their training. It is the duty of general officers commanding to organize classes for officers as laid down in Training and Manœuvre Regulations (4-(ii)), and the subjects of instruction selected should be of practical value to them in training their men.

Every step is to be taken to encourage the initiative of officers and to make them train and command their units. To do this efficiently a certain standard of military knowledge is essential. Volunteer officers should, when possible, be attached to regular units during training, and be given every opportunity of attending manœuvres, field days and lectures. Commanding officers should always place themselves in touch with the local military authorities with a view to carrying out the above. A volunteer officer on leave out of India may be allowed to attend a school of instruction or territorial annual camp at home. His application will be submitted through the proper channel to the divisional commander who, if he supports it, will forward it to the India Office.

65. N. C. O.'s are to be trained both as instructors and leaders; such training to be in the hands of their company officers assisted by the permanent staff. To accustom them to command they must be encouraged to train their own sub-units.

The training of the volunteer will be progressive and confined to essentials, drill being taught to inculcate discipline, but any attempt to attain smartness in handling arms at the expense of efficiency in musketry and field duties is to be deprecated. Training is to be practical.

66. Naval and artillery volunteers at defended ports will be allotted to a part of the defences, and the officer commanding Royal Garrison Artillery will arrange for guns and other necessary stores to be placed at their disposal for instructional purposes. Naval and artillery volunteers who are efficient should endeavour to attend defence rehearsals at their stations.

67. Electrical engineer volunteers will receive technical instruction in the care and working of oil engines, steam engines, dynamos, search light projectors, arc lamps and the accessory apparatus for projectors, electrical communicating apparatus, telephones, electric cables: railway engineer volunteers—in the construction of military railways and in field fortification (for course of instruction see Appx. VII).

68. Volunteer corps which are in possession of machine guns will endeavour to maintain two trained detachments per gun. Machine gun.

69. In each corps such proportion of the volunteers as the general officer commanding may consider desirable will be trained as scouts, signallers, stretcher bearers, men for sanitary duties, farriers, shoeing smiths, pioneers and other specialist duties. Special duties.

70. Training in first aid is of importance to volunteers as in event of their being called on in emergency, medical assistance might not always be forthcoming. Courses of instruction under the auspices of St. John's Ambulance Association should be held annually in each unit. First aid.

71. The course of annual training will be drawn up by commanding officers in consultation with the general officer commanding the brigade, who will consider the circumstances of each corps, reference being made when necessary to the local civil or political authorities. The object to be aimed at in drawing up the programme is to prepare the unit for its place in the scheme of internal defence in many points connected with which volunteers should easily become expert, and at the same time to give it a grounding in the ordinary duties of the arm to which it belongs. Arrangements should be worked out for rapid assembly, for the custody of arms and all other precautions necessary during a state of disturbance; every detail should be foreseen and provided for. Corps are not to emulate regulars but are to confine themselves to those points in training which are absolutely necessary. It is to be remembered that the foundation of efficiency is thorough individual training. Those units which may have to take part in ceremonial must include such training in their programme. Annual training.

It is not necessary that each unit should hold a camp every year. G. O. C. will distribute the camp grant as is most desirable in the interests of efficiency. Vide paragraph 119

Musketry.

72. The musketry training of volunteers will be carried out in accordance with Musketry Regulations, Parts I and II, and the Indian Musketry Regulations, Part III, and the Indian Supplement to Musketry Regulations. Officers Commanding. Musketry.

Execution of musketry practices will be discontinued and will be discontinued and will not be classed as efficient during the year in question.

74. Revolver practices are laid down in the Indian Supplement to Musketry Regulations. To qualify as an extra efficient, 96 points must be obtained. An officer will be allowed for this practice 100 rounds of revolver ammunition in place of the authorised free allowance of small arm ammunition (see Appx. XIV. S. II, Table VIII).

75. Five divisional and eight provincial medals are granted annually by the State for rifle shooting as follows:— Musketry medals.

Cleaning and care of .303 arms.

(Referred to in para. 42.)

gun oil should be used for the actions and rifle oil for barrels only. Rifles and carbines must, on first issue, be thoroughly cleaned before being placed in the hands of volunteers.]

1. Barrels will be wiped out with oiled flannelette daily, also before firing, and thoroughly cleaned and oiled after firing. When cleaning before return to quarters if practicable, the bore must be wiped out with oiled flannelette immediately firing is over, and thoroughly cleaned as soon as possible. In wet weather, arms must be cleaned immediately on return to quarters.
2. The inside of the body, the action, and the bolt of magazine arms should be wiped with an oiled rag to prevent rust and to remove dirt, and then the outside of the body and the barrel should be cleaned.
3. In the case of M. M. and M. E. arms, the inside of the body, as far as practicable, the block and the cartridge chamber, should be wiped with an oil grade and the inside of the barrel rubbed.
4. Bores will be cleaned as follows.—Oil the gauze of the pull-through well with rifle oil, drop the weight through the barrel from the breach and pull the gauze completely through. Then insert in the loop nearest the gauze a piece of dry flannelette, and draw it through the barrel; the flannelette should never be pulled back when partly through as it will probably jam. Finally, an oiled piece of flannelette should be drawn through and the bore left oily. Rifle oil should be well shaken before use.

It may be necessary to use three or four pieces of flannelette before the barrel is "rag clean," i.e. before the material remains unsoiled after use; those which are but little soiled should be saved for future use. No larger piece of flannelette than 4 inches by 2 inches should ever be used, and the width may sometimes be reduced with advantage. When the gauze on the pull-through ceases to fit the barrel tightly, narrow strips of flannelette or paper should be inserted under each side to increase its diameter. It saves time if two men assist one another, one holding the rifle, the other manipulating the pull through. Water should on no account be used after firing with cordite ammunition. Although an arm in which rust has been allowed to form may be cleaned so as to be "rag clean," it may be so pitted that it would not be "view clean," i.e., in a state to be passed by an inspector. It is necessary, therefore, that the greatest care should be taken to prevent the formation of rust, which can only be done by strictly carrying out the foregoing instructions.

5. No hard substances, such as emery, sand paper, etc., is ever to be used for cleaning either the inside or outside of the arm, and care is to be taken to prevent the browning being rubbed off the barrel.

6. To prevent water soaking into the stock, and at the same time to give it a polished appearance, it should be well rubbed with oil. French polish or varnish is not to be used.

MAGAZINE ARMS.

7. To remove the bolt.—Raise the knob with the right hand as far as it will go, draw back the bolt to the resisting shoulder, release the bolt head with the forefinger of the right hand from the retaining spring, and raise it to the full extent, then draw back and remove the bolt.

11. The amount of pressure required to release the nose of the sear from the knob of the cocking-piece is called the "pull off." When it is too heavy or too light, the defect is not to be remedied by the volunteer. The pull-off should be between 6 lbs. and 8 lbs.

cleaning purposes.

15. Oiling the action.—The action can usually be sufficiently oiled by pouring a few drops of Rangoon oil through the opening between the lever and body when the end of the lever loop is drawn out of its catch-block, and the carbine held with the trigger guard uppermost.
